Course Syllabus

The course syllabus is a general plan for the course; deviations announced to the class by the instructor may be necessary to improve the course quality

CATALOG DESCRIPTION:
This is a capstone course intended to provide a bridge from theory to practice for students preparing for entry into leisure, sport, or wellness professions. Students will engage in analysis of professional roles and responsibilities, examine ethical professional behavior, and participate in a service project to promote healthy lifestyles and quality of life. Course should be taken in the last years of degree completion.

COURSE TEXT:

Additional readings will be posted or shared.
STUDENT LEARNING OUTCOMES:
At the completion of this course, you should be able to:

1. Make connections between different areas of knowledge and different ways of knowing by critically analyzing issues facing professional practice.

   State the impact of leisure, sport, and wellness from a historical, technological, economic, or political perspective; describe it clearly using current evidence and carefully evaluating the relevance of literature; state a position; and draw conclusions, implications, and consequences.

2. Express different ideas, perspectives, and viewpoints that have enriched your thinking about professional practices in written and oral format

   Articulate your professional philosophy and career goals related to realistic employment opportunities through a philosophical paper and presentation as well as through a professional resume and cover letter.

3. Apply decision-making strategies that include ethical analysis related to personal and professional success.

   Apply critical thinking, problem solving, and decision making strategies as a means to discovering solutions to complex ethical issues during professional practices using case studies.

4. Articulate the social significance of recreation, leisure, sports, and wellness including the potential for these services to address contemporary social problems.

   State the impact of leisure, sport, and wellness from a historical, technological, economic, or political perspective; describe it clearly using current evidence and carefully evaluating the relevance of literature; state a position; and draw conclusions, implications, and consequences to address contemporary and social problems.

5. Communicate in written and verbal form better than when you entered the class.

   Create a cover letter and resume and prepare and present two oral class presentations as well as three papers.
6. Consider different points of view and work effectively with group and several other class groups to facilitate a meaningful panel discussion of experts on what students should do to prepare for their internships.

Design and facilitate panel of experts using team work.

7. Exploring intercultural competence, knowledge of civic responsibility, and the ability to engage in communities, the class will create a service learning project to be implemented in the future.

Design a service learning project to promote leisure, active lifestyles, and/or wellness with a target group.

Course Procedures & Expectations

Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act (FERPA) Information. Students have the right to expect their grades will be kept confidential. Your course grade, as well as grades for each assignment, will not be posted or handled in a way, which could result in your being identified by other students or faculty members.
